Coronavirus: Information for all supervised entities

Information of the CSSF

In the face of the upsurge of COVID-19 cases, the Commission de Surveillance du Secteur Financier (CSSF) calls on the entities under its supervision to use telework

We are facing an unprecedented upsurge in coronavirus infections whose consequences cannot be measured at this stage. The government indicated that the situation gives cause for concern during its press conference today.

It is essential that, like everyone, the entities under the CSSF's supervision contribute to prevent the propagation of the virus, while ensuring business continuity.

We therefore ask you to use telework wherever possible.

As regards your employees who need to work on-site, we reiterate the importance of following the health precautions mentioned in our previous communiqués.

COVID-19 Thematic Review of issuers' reporting

The COVID-19 pandemic has hit Luxembourg as other European countries since the beginning of the year 2020 and has adversely affected a number of issuers under our supervision. In this context, we have decided to carry out a thematic review of the information provided by issuers concerning the impact of COVID-19 on their operations and financial performance as of 30 June 2020.

We noted that information provided in the interim financial reports regarding the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic was generally sufficiently entity-specific and detailed. The information was mainly available in the management reports and often repeated or summarised in the relevant notes to the financial statements.

However we consider that there are several areas for improvement that issuers should consider when preparing their future financial information regarding the impacts of this pandemic.

The main issue encountered concerns the impairment of non-financial assets. Indeed we were confronted with insufficient disclosure in the interim financial reports and more importantly, we observed that the assessments made by management with regard to the recoverable value of non-financial assets did not always appear consistent with the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic (on the first half-year 2020 and planned) described elsewhere in the financial reports.

Another area for improvement concerns the measurement and disclosure of expected credit losses (ECLs), especially on trade and lease receivables for corporates. A number of the issuers examined hold significant receivables for which the credit risk is likely to change as their clients could be weakened by the effects of COVID-19. As such, we expect issuers to provide precise information on their credit risk management in response to COVID-19 and on any significant adjustments made to the impairment models as well as on the impairment losses recognised.

The findings relate to interim and annual financial reports published for periods ending March 2020 or after.

Fight against money laundering and terrorist financing

The FATF published three reports regarding virtual assets and virtual asset service providers

The CSSF would like to raise awareness to three reports of the Financial Action Task Force (“FATF”) that have been published over the summer regarding Virtual Assets (“VAs”) and Virtual Asset Service Providers (“VASPs”).

“FATF Report on VAs and Red flag indicators of money laundering and terrorist financing”

In September 2020, the FATF has published a report highlighting red flags in relation to VAs potentially indicating money laundering or terrorist financing (“ML/TF”) ¹. Information of the report is relevant not only for Virtual Asset Service Providers but also for financial institutions or non-financial sector professionals and for relevant public authorities in order to help detection, reporting, analysing and ultimately prosecution of criminal activity and also monitoring of compliance with AML/CFT professional obligations.

Virtual Assets and their potential vulnerabilities can be used to launder proceeds from a range of offences that include the sale of controlled substances and other illegal items (including firearms), fraud, investment scams, tax evasion, computer crimes (e.g. cyberattacks resulting in thefts), child exploitation, human trafficking, sanctions evasion, etc. Indeed, according to the report, the most common types of misuse are i) for illicit trafficking in controlled substances, either with sales transacted directly in VAs or the use of VAs as an ML layering technique and ii) related to frauds, scams, ransomware, and extortion.

Red flags indicating potential misuse of VAs for ML/TF purposes in this report focus on:

- Transaction patterns – that are irregular, unusual or uncommon which can suggest criminal activity;
- Transaction size and frequency – if the amount and frequency has no logical business explanation;
- Technological features that increase anonymity – such as the use of peer-to-peer exchanges websites, mixing or tumbling services or anonymity-enhanced crypto-currencies;
- Sender or recipient profiles – unusual behaviour that can suggest criminal activity either during account creation or during CDD process, risk of role as money mules or scam victims;
- Source of funds or wealth – which can relate to criminal activity;
- Geographical risks – criminals can exploit countries with weak, or absent, national measures for virtual assets.

The presence of one sole indicator may not be sufficiently telling for detecting criminal activity but it should trigger further examination and assessment by professionals in order to be able to determine whether a suspicious activity/transaction report needs to be filed with the FIU. The report can also be used to inform transaction monitoring and customer due diligence measures to be put in place by professionals.

“FATF update on VASPs and Stablecoins”

The “12-month review of the revised FATF standards on Virtual Assets and Virtual Asset Service Providers” published in June 2020², is the result of the FATF’s Virtual Assets Contact Group (“VACG”) analysis in order to monitor implementation by the public and the private sector of the revised FATF Standards relating to the virtual assets sector, as well as to monitor any change in the typologies and associated risks.

Through this report, the FATF informs how ML/TF risks and the VA sector have changed since June 2019, observes the participating jurisdictions’ and private sector’s progress in implementing the revised Standards, including the development of technical solutions for the implementation of the “travel rule”, to set out issues identified at the level of the revised FATF Standards and Guidance and finally, to announce the FATF's next steps.

It appears too early to attest full implementation of the revised Standards within all jurisdictions and by the majority of the private sector, nonetheless considerable efforts were reported and most FATF members/jurisdictions have introduced new legislation to specifically regulate VASPs. Thus, they have taken adequate steps in order to register or license VASPs, though divergent approaches have been taken.³

Per the trends observed in the use of VAs, it appears that VAs have generally been used for the layering stage in the money laundering process, in principle due to the rapidity of transfers, and the criminal activity linked to their use predominantly consists in narcotics and fraud related offences as confirmed in the above-mentioned FATF Report on red flag indicators. It also seems that usually only one type of VA is used for criminal activity.

VASPs are required to implement the FATF's AML/CFT measures set out under Recommendations 10-21 and detailed under the Interpretative Note 15, including Recommendation 16 on wire transfer requirements. Regarding Recommendation 16, the so-called "travel rule" that VASPs need to comply with, consists specifically of the requirement to apply specific measures in view of the identification of originators and beneficiaries of financial transactions and in order to avoid they remain anonymous.

Particular challenges in relation to an effective implementation of the travel rule include problems connected with the identification by a VASP of another counterparty VASP and the examination of their registered or licensed status from an AML/CFT perspective, peer-to-peer transactions via private or unhosted wallets and the absence of their being subject to explicit AML/CFT requirements, batch and post facto submission, application of different rules and standards in various jurisdictions that impact the inter-operability of systems and finally, the so-called "sunrise issue", consisting in the absence of a global framework for travel rule compliance among jurisdictions.

It is admitted that the technological standards for "travel rule" solutions have considerably evolved and messaging standards are continuously being developed, nonetheless holistic technological solutions have not been available for a global travel rule implementation until today. The FATF thus maintains the call upon the VASP sector to redouble its efforts on this subject.

The FATF's next steps in the field include performing another 12-month review by June 2021, no amendments to the FATF Revised Standards but need for further guidance, further analysis by the FATF VACG, enhancement of the interactions with and the engagement of the private sector, as well as the fostering of international cooperation between jurisdictions and particularly between VASPs supervisory authorities.

"FATF Report to the G20 Finance Ministers and Central Bank Governors on So-called Stablecoins"

This report⁴, also published in June 2020, is the result of a separate analysis that the FATF performed with respect to the so-called stablecoins, whose results were also taken into account in the aforementioned 12-month review on VAs and VASPs.

The so-called stablecoins are a type of assets whose value is meant to be stable relative to that of an underlying asset or benchmark. They are presumed to be exposed to the same ML/TF risks as VAs and VASPs and appear to be particularly used at the layering stage, similar to VAs and VASPs, due to their potential for anonymity. The FATF considers that higher risks might be posed in view of the stabilisation mechanism used to fix the asset price.

A major issue associated with the so-called stablecoins is the fact that their mass adoption could lead to a substantial increase in the number of anonymous peer-to-peer virtual asset transactions occurring via unhosted wallets. It is to be noted that peer-to-peer transactions without the use of a VASP or

³ At this point, it is reminded that in Luxembourg, VASPs are defined in the Luxembourg Law of 12 November 2004 on AML/CFT and are subject to CSSF registration in accordance with the provisions of aforementioned law. These professionals are expected to comply with the AML/CFT requirements provided for in that same law. For further information please consult: <https://www.cssf.lu/en/virtual-asset-service-provider-vasp/>.

another AML/CFT-regulated entity are not explicitly covered by the revised FATF Standards. It needs to be further mentioned that the FATF does not seek to regulate the technology associated with VASP activities, the so-called stablecoins or related software creations, only to efficiently address the risks linked with such activity from an AML/CFT perspective.

For the time being and following the FATF 12-month review, the FATF considers that the current standards do not necessitate further update in view of the so-called stablecoins. Nonetheless, the FATF calls for prudence and incites jurisdictions and the private sector, particularly intermediaries (banks, money service businesses, etc.), to take all steps set out under its 12-month review with reference to VAs and VASPs, since those appear to sufficiently cover the so-called stablecoins for the moment.
